For Former Belles.

From 3 to 7 o'clock on Wednesday last the Sherman home was thronged with members of society. Mrs. Sherman, Miss Sherman and Miss Laura Sherman have hidden more than 200 friends to a dinner in honor of Mrs. William Gibson and Mrs. Thomas B. Davis and Mrs. W. McKay. Roses were used entirely for the decoration of the home, red in the reception hall and parlor, and pink in the dining-room. A tall vase of Chatenay roses stood in the center of the dining table on an exquisitely embroidered piece done in pink roses. Single crystal candlesticks with candles in the prevailing tone stood at either corner of the centerpiece, and which sprays of plumosa were scattered. Vases of the roses stood on the sideboard, which also held silver candelabra with candles and shades of pink. Out-ride on the beautiful lawn punch, was served. Ritter at the home of Mrs. Jennings on B street. The already beautiful home was made even more attractive by the artistic decorations, than which there have been none prettier even here this season. A wealth of yellow garden roses converted the rooms into a bower of beauty indeed and elicited the greatest admiration from the guests. Vases of the roses stood on tables and bookcases, masses of them banked on mantels, sideboard and china closet, and beautiful draperies for windows and doors. The dining table was beautiful indeed, with its clusters of roses tied with yellow tulle, its centerpiece of yellow roses and handsome brass candelabrum holding yellow candles, shedding a soft light over the board. Receiving with Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. Ritter and Mrs. Dinwoody was Mrs. Frank W. Jennings. Presiding in the dining-room were Mrs. Kenneth C. Kerr and Miss Mary Louise Anderson, while assisting in entertaining the guests were Mrs. James E. Jennings, Miss Elsie Ritter, Miss Edith Kingsbury, Miss Crismon, Miss Ellerbeck and Miss Jennings.

Married in Frisco.

White roses, forget-me-nots and glossy greens combined to form a charming decoration. A large wedding bell of white roses and tulle hung over the altar. Miss Morris looked very charming in a beautiful imported gown, each ruffle of which was trimmed with lace. A long bertha of white lace finished the neck. Lilies of the valley made a dainty bridal bouquet. Miss Josephine Cohen, the maid of honor, wore white crepe de chine over pale green silk, with green chiffon sash and bouquet of maidenhair. Four bridesmaids, Miss Mabel Levy, Miss Lillian Reiss, Miss Linda Richenberg and Miss Kitty Lichtenstein, were dressed alike in white crepe de chine over blue tulle. Shower bouquets of forget-me-nots were carried by all. E. M. Lichtenstein, a brother of the groom, acted as best man. The ushers were Simon Fubs, Dr. Albert Cohn, Albert Brandt and Bert Gerson. At the wedding supper which followed the ceremony, let-a-ete tables were decorated with forget-me-nots. The bride's table seated twenty-four, was oval in form and was arranged with both white roses and the tiny blue flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Lichtenstein are leaving this morning for quite a lengthy trip to St. Louis and New York, after which they will go to Salt Lake to reside."
